

PEDICURE

Toes are an accident-prone lot. They're the first body part to hit when you walk into furniture, the first to squish when you try on new sandals, the first to get stepped on in the Italian Market. Still, after more than a month of stubbing and scraping and walking into things, toes polished by the expert hands of Lynn Yasenchak, who works downstairs at Rizzieri Spa's Marlton location, looked, no lie, as good as just-done. Rizzieri Spa, 6001 West Lincoln Drive, Marlton, 856-985-5500, rizzieri.com.

LINENS

It isn't just Ashton-Whyte's unrivaled stock of high-thread-count sheets, shams and covers by John Matouk, Sferra, Anichini and Pine Cone Hill. It's the way owner Ellen Yazujian and her staffers come to our homes on personal-shopper-style "house calls" to choose exactly which duvets and fluffy towels will go with our just-painted walls. 123 North Wayne Avenue, Wayne, 610-688-2940; 250 South Main Street, Pennington, 609-737-7171; ashtonwhyte.com.

DRESSES

We realize it's called Skirt—and we do love the array of mini and pencil options—but Skirt's actually where we go when we need to stylishly (and literally) cover up in dresses. There are psychedelic '70s-inspired shifts by Milly, updated wrap dresses by Diane Von Furstenburg, and so-sweet Rebecca Taylor sundresses, too. And we're thrilled—so thrilled—that Skirt's in an even bigger spot, just a few doors down from its old one; now, there's even more room for shoes and accessories and jewelry! 931 West Lancaster Avenue, Bryn Mawr, 610-520-0222, shop-skirt.com.

COSMETICS STORE

Consider Bucks's newest beauty outpost, Blossom, the gold standard. Its mod, airy space—think wood and glass and orange accents—is the perfect backdrop for Bergdorf-worthy, hard-to-find lines like every Bond No. 9 fragrance under the sun, Shu Uemura's complete color and skin-care repertoire, and Burn candles that last for 100 hours (in scents like Asian Pear Persimmon and Grenadine Pomegranate), as well as prettily packaged goodies from Santa Maria Novella, Miller et Bertaux, Maître Parfumeur et Gantier, and Fresh. And best of all, you can still sample and experiment with the goodies, as you would at any larger beauty emporium. 13 South State Street, Newtown, 215-860-3388, blossomcosmeticboutique.com.

GUY'S HAIRCUT

What made our stable of shockingly finicky (and shamelessly hirsute) male guinea pigs fall so hard for Jason Matthew Salon that they were willing to cheat on the same $10-a-cut barbers they've been going to since kindergarten? For starters, there's the soda-stocked mini-fridge. Then there are the free soft pretzels and granola bars. There's the casual exposed-brick reception area and the comfy leather couches. But mostly it's the expertise and experience and, well, listening skills of Pileggi transplant Jason Sparks, and Matthew Diacont, and rising stars like Joyce Miele, who don't go with what they want, but with what their customers want. (Curly-haired guys will be especially pleased to see their locks maintained—not hacked off.) 1426 Walnut Street, third floor, 215-545-5055, jason-matthew.com.
